R.C.F. 6/29/02

1. (Three Times Amended) A method of recording an audio file for playback over a computer system comprising the steps of:

- a. establishing a telephony connection between a telephony device and a call recording device;
- b. recording an audio communication transmitted over the telephony connection thereby establishing a recorded audio file; and
- c. associating an independently accessible address with the recorded audio file, such that when the address is accessed using the computer system, the recorded audio
